Can you talk about the kids?

- You have kids and you have a domestic violence order (DVO) with the other parent. The rules might say that you can talk to each other to make plans for your kids.
- The rule might say you can talk about those plans:
 - to another person
 - with a mediator
 - with a lawyer.
- The rule might say you can talk about those plans using text messages.
- Ask a lawyer if the DVO says you can talk about the kids.
- Only talk about what your kids need.
- Do not talk about your other problems.
- Be respectful.
